

Aleasha is a passionate family lawyer with 14 years' experience across private, not for profit and public organisations. She holds a Master's in Applied Law (Family) and has a diverse range of experience having practiced family law, domestic violence and child protection in Townsville, Brisbane and remote communities in the Northern Territory.

Aleasha is collaboratively trained, a family law arbitrator and an Independent Children's Lawyer. She is a regular trainer and facilitator for the National ICL training program and contributes to training, policy and practice in her role at Legal Aid Queensland.