

THE DEVELOPMENT, TRAINING AND RETENTION OF THE SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH WORKFORCE

Angela Kelly¹

¹Senior Principal Research Fellow Unit Head, SRH Unit, Section Head Social and Behavioural Research, Papua New Guinea Institute of Medical Research Kirby Institute for Infection and Immunity in Society

This presentation will explore the challenges and lessons learned in supporting the development of the clinical, health services management and research workforce to deliver sexually transmissible infections and cervical cancer screening and prevention programs in Papua New Guinea.