Australasian HIV&AIDS Conference Convenor Welcome

Conference Theme: Towards health justice: medicine, science, and the politics of HIV elimination.

Marni naa pudni (Kurna welcome)

Welcome to the Australasian HIV&AIDS Conference 2025, Towards health justice: medicine, science, and the politics of HIV elimination

The conference theme acknowledges the challenges of achieving the 2030 goal of virtually eliminating HIV, particularly with recent cuts to global funds to support HIV services, the growing power of political movements that stigmatise and discriminate against women, LGBTQ+ communities, migrants and illicit drug users.

This conference also returns to Tarndanya (Adelaide) on Kurna Country in a year where South Australia marks the 50th anniversary of the decriminalisation of homosexuality in 1975. South Australia was the first state in Australia to decriminalise homosexuality. The 50th anniversary serves as a timely reminder of the significant roles played by LGBTQ+ communities in the response to HIV and of the importance of advocacy and activism in achieving human rights and social change.

The conference provides a platform for delegates to engage with the latest clinical, social, epidemiological, and basic science research, alongside, new developments in health promotion, policy, community advocacy and health care delivery.

This multidisciplinary conference enables delegates to explore how we can work towards ending the HIV epidemic, by following the evidence and ensuring health justice for all people and communities living with and affected by HIV.

We hope you enjoy the conference and find some time to explore the natural beauty, culinary experiences, wine and interesting sights that South Australia has to offer.

Australasian ASRH Conference Convenor Welcome

Conference Theme: Collaborate, elevate and innovate!

The inception of the Australasian Sexual & Reproductive Health Conference was created out of an identified need to strengthen the linkages between sexual and reproductive health services, research, and advocacy. The conference invites leading organisations and individuals in the sexual and reproductive health sector across Australasia to develop the program. In 2024, the conference was incorporated with the 25th IUSTI World Congress, this year, the conference returns to its traditional delivery taking place back-to-back with the Australasian HIV&AIDS Conference.

The Australasian Sexual and Reproductive Health Conference 2025 (16-18 September, Tarndanya (Adelaide) on Kurna Country) will unite experts, researchers, clinicians, and community to address key issues in sexual and reproductive health across Australasia. Focusing on innovation, inclusivity, best practice, rights, and justice - the event will explore innovative advancements, policy challenges, and future strategies to improve health outcomes in our communities: Collaborate, elevate, and innovate!

All disciplines involved in sexual health medicine and sexual health promotion are encouraged to come together and share experiences, new research and discuss national and local responses to sexual health in Australasia. Our goals include promoting and facilitating dialogue, collaboration and networking among researchers, community representatives, jurisdictional policy decision makers, and the health workforce from various geographic, demographic, and professional sector partners internationally. We encourage and support the active participation of new and early career clinicians, researchers, scientists, allied health workers, and community members, as well as abstract presenters and attendees.

Whilst in Tarndanya (Adelaide), we will also be celebrating the milestone of 50 years since the decriminalisation of male homosexuality in South Australia – the first state in Australia to do so. By elevating the tireless campaigning from LGBTQIA+ activists from the recent past, we can also draw attention and collaborate on maintaining and strengthening rights, justice, and inclusive healthcare for LGBTQIA+ communities.

We hope you enjoy the conference as much as we have enjoyed creating it for you.
