A Message from the Conference Convenors

The ASID Annual Scientific Meeting (3-5 April 2025) is the peak Australasian meeting for adult and paediatric infectious disease and clinical microbiology specialists. International speakers will offer expert global perspectives.

Australasian research and expertise will be highlighted with keynote lectures, proffered papers, symposia and educational workshops. We are excited to be holding the face-to-face event at the Hyatt Hotel Canberra. The hotel, in the heart of the nation's capital, has welcomed guests since the 1920s and has for many years played an important part in Canberra's social and political life.

In 2025 our theme 'the changing face of infectious disease' will explore what infectious disease will look like into the future. The programme will feature presentations and discussion on topics including new technology in the diagnosis and management of infectious disease, public health and the newly formed Australian CDC, and regional infectious disease in Australia and the Pacific.

We are planning an informative and engaging programme and look forward to seeing you in Canberra in 2025!

An invitation from ASID

PROFESSOR JOSEPH DOYLE

On behalf of the Australasian Society for Infectious Diseases (ASID), I would like to invite you to be part of the ASID Annual Scientific Meeting in Canberra, Australia 3-5 April 2025. We are delighted that it will be a face-to-face event.

ASID is the peak professional body for infectious diseases and microbiology in the region and a key stakeholder for government departments, medical colleges and other societies, including international organisations.

The aims of the Society are to:

- Advance postgraduate education in infectious diseases in Australasia and internationally
- Promote research in all aspects of infectious diseases
- Advocate for sound and evidence-based public health policy in matters related to infectious diseases.

ASID continues to grow with more than 1200 members including Infectious Diseases Physicians, Clinical Microbiologists, Scientists, Infection Control Practitioners, Public Health Physicians, Sexual Health Physicians, Veterinarians, and others eminent in the field of infectious diseases. We have several Special Interest Groups bringing together members with interests in Paediatric infections, Hospital Infection Control, Immunocompromised Host, Vaccines, Mycology, Zoonoses and Viral Hepatitis, as well as a Clinical Research Network and a New Zealand Steering Committee. Many of our members were on the front-line of Australia and New Zealand's response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Our members, from the youngest trainees and students to the more experienced clinicians, look forward to our Annual Scientific Meeting every year. For many members the ASM is the first opportunity they have to interact with their peers.

Sponsorships of our conference, and ASID events in general, are intended to be unencumbered and sponsors do not have input in the organisation of the event. Your financial support of the conference will help keep registration fees affordable for all our delegates and will allow your organisation to gain exposure to our audience.

I hope you will be able to be part of what promises to be a wonderful 2025 event.

Macfarlane Burnet Oration

Each year at the ASID scientific meeting, a world- renowned expert in infectious diseases is invited to give the Macfarlane Burnet Oration, named in honour of the Nobel Prize winning Australian virologist Sir Frank Macfarlane Burnet, a pioneer in the fields of virology and immunology.

Welcome Prof Colleen Suzanne Kraft

In 2025 we are delighted to welcome Dr. Colleen Kraft, MD, MSc, a Professor in the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine and the Department of Medicine, Division of Infectious Diseases at the Emory University School of Medicine. Dr. Kraft is an inpatient infectious diseases clinician, and has served in a consultant role for the clinical microbiology section of Emory Medical laboratories since 2010, along with being program director of the medical microbiology fellowship.

Dr. Kraft is the program director of the Georgia CTSA Clinical Research Centers, and the laboratory director of the clinical virology core in the Center for AIDS Research.

She is a key opinion leader in fecal microbiota transplant use in C. difficile infection. She was a part of the clinical team that cared for patients with Ebola virus disease at Emory in 2014 and served on Georgia's COVID-19 task force during the pandemic.

Dr. Kraft recently transitioned from Associate Chief Medical Officer of Emory University Hospital to a research Informatician role in Emory Digital in order to return to her early career goal of leveraging information science in the clinical setting based on bacterial genome sequencing.

Prof. Kraft's research interests are in next-generation sequencing, microbiome therapeutics and healthcare innovation factors. She is involved in multiple clinical trials and has published almost 200 peer-reviewed papers. She is the immediate Past President of the American Society for Microbiology and is passionate about training the next global generation and believes that creativity and innovation in federal policy can bring about lasting positive change in science.
