2025 Co-Convenors

Angela McBride

Executive Director at South African
Network of People Who Use Drugs

Angela McBride is a woman who uses drugs and the Executive Director for the South African Network of People who Use Drugs (SANPUD). Angela has worked in the field of harm reduction for over 7 years, with lived experience working and participating in abstinence programs and centres while studying at the University of Pretoria, prior to being introduced to harm reduction as an intervention to mitigate the harms experienced by people who use drugs.

Dr. Andrew Scheibe

Technical Advisor, TB HIV Care,
Researcher, University of Pretoria

Dr Andrew Scheibe is a medical doctor who works in key population programmes and policy in South Africa and the region. His work focuses on infectious diseases, substance use and harm reduction. He is a technical advisor for TB HIV Care and a researcher at the University of Pretoria.

Who We Are

The International Network on Health and Hepatitis in Substance Users (INHSU) is a global network of people dedicated to improving the health of people who use drugs, with a specific focus on hepatitis C, infectious diseases, and harms that can occur from drug use.

We are a global network that brings together a diverse range of people working across sectors to improve the health of people who use drugs. It includes people who use drugs, advocates, healthcare providers, program managers, harm reduction experts, researchers, and policymakers.

Our three focus areas are:

Knowledge Exchange

We support, facilitate, and foster scientific exchange and the dissemination of knowledge to improve the health of people who use drugs across the world. This exchange focuses on evidence-based research that aims to improve access to prevention, treatment, and care for hepatitis C, other infectious diseases, and harms that occur from drug use.

Education

We educate healthcare providers, program managers, harm reduction experts, researchers, policy-makers, and others to improve their knowledge, confidence and skills.

Advocacy

We work with our international partners to develop evidence-based calls to action and encourage decision-makers to implement proven interventions that improve the health of people who use drugs in local communities, countries, regions, and globally.

“I have been coming to INHSU for many years as I like the mix of very good scientific content combined with policy and advocacy. It is also a very good networking occasion, where you meet a lot of colleagues from different parts of the harm reduction field.”

DR NIKLAS LUHMANN,
World Health Organization (WHO)

“I like to attend INHSU because I learn what is new in research regarding people who inject drugs, but also the opinion of the community on the research and services provided to this population. It is also comforting to see that people who are doing research or designing services across the world face similar challenges and hear about novel approaches”

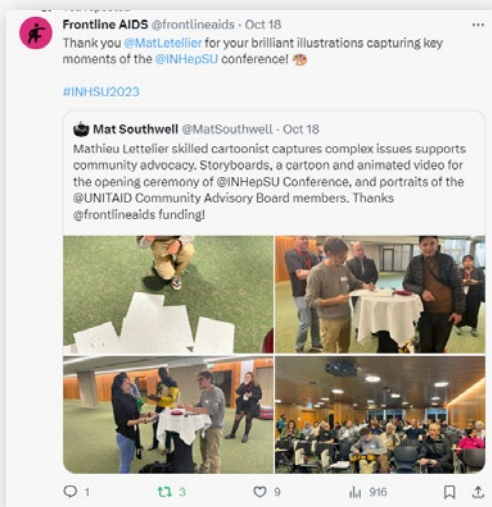

DR VANA SYPSA
University of Athens

“One of the major benefits of the INHSU conference is that it’s a really interesting opportunity to come together with front-line workers, researchers, and people with lived experience from across the world and hear about the work they’re doing. There’s also the ability to create connections that can lead to new research collaborations down the road”

DR GILLIAN KOLLA
Canadian Institute for Substance Use
Research, University of Victoria.
