

Alcohol, tobacco and other drug use across the Australian workforce: Multiple dimensions of risk for targeting industries and tailoring workplace alcohol and other drug interventions

- Most people who use alcohol, tobacco and other drugs (ATOD) are employed
- Most people who are employed spend a considerable amount of time in the workplace
- Workplaces therefore offer potentially effective sites to introduce ATOD interventions
- BUT – which industries should we target?
- The answer depends on how you determine risk:
  - By number of workers?
  - By prevalence of use?
  - By type of substance?
- We present these figures in our poster, using 2022-23 NDSHS data
- We want to know what you think! Please scan the QR code on our poster and complete the pop quiz!

Poster board #63

kirrilly.thompson@flinders.edu.au

NCETA

FHMRI

