BACKGROUND/AIMS &amp; METHODS:

www.iustiap18.com

- ❖ Consent for PrEP is tricky with many facts to cover in a short time
- ❖ Not all people needing PrEP speak English
- ❖ Is it consent if the recipient didn't understand all the language?
- ❖ Can there be a way to create a uniform consent that stands legal scrutiny?
- ❖ Optimised script created for PrEP Consent
- ❖ Simple icons used to create animation for PrEP consent
- ❖ Script translated to most common non English languages in Australia
- ❖ Tied to a web based consent process that is transportable and easily utilised by patients and practitioners

RESULTS:www.iustiap18.com

- Patients reported satisfaction with the process. Video reinforced existing knowledge and highlighted areas of knowledge gap.
- Good comprehension of important points and able to review at their own pace.
- Video frequently prompts questions for patients to gain increased understanding
- Presentation also created time where clinician is able to prepare testing, swabs and prescriptions
- Non English speakers appreciate having resources in their native language.
- Having printed and signed consent reinforced key points as well as reducing medico legal risk

CONCLUSIONS/IMPLICATIONS:www.iustiap18.com

- Video consent has been well accepted.
- Video also educates clinicians as much as patients
- I recommend roll out to other areas to help increase literacy of PrEP with patients and clinicians
- More language resources (and doctors to review) are required.
- Consent can be expanded into other medical and surgical interventions within the sphere of sexual and reproductive health.
