Message from Robert Brewer

Chief Executive, Spirits New Zealand

The New Zealand Spirits Awards continually surpasses expectations. This year is no exception as we continue to grow the Awards into New Zealand's premier event for the judging of our best international and local products.

The fact that we had over 400 entries this year when globally, as well as locally, economic headwinds might have had distillers putting their hands in their pockets is testimony to the importance and quality of the Awards as well as the tenaciousness of sector participants. This indefatigable quality that exists within the spirits industry is also evidenced by the quality of the entries being judged and the broad support we get from sponsors – the Awards would not exist as they do without either of these coming together for one outcome – the promotion and growth of the spirits industry.

And as consumer trends change I feel the sector is well placed to take advantage of a consumer that is drinking less but looking for premium, unique drinking experiences. Spirits – either consumed neat or as a cocktail or RTD – are fast becoming the preferential premium choice for the busy, mindful drinker.

A big thank you to the tireless judges, my fellow organising committee members, sponsors, event partner Avenues Event Management, the Board of Distilled Spirits Aotearoa and, of course, the Board of Spirits New Zealand who continue to underwrite the Awards as they have from year one. Bring on next year!

Message from Dave Hawk

Distilled Spirits Aotearoa (DSA) Board
Member and New Zealand Spirits Awards Head
Judge Facilitator

Every year, the New Zealand Spirits Awards give us the chance to do something special — to come together as an industry and celebrate the craft, creativity, and hard work that go into producing world-class spirits in Aotearoa. These awards are a true team effort. Behind the scenes, dozens of people — many of them volunteers — contribute countless hours to make this event happen. It's a partnership between Distilled Spirits Aotearoa and Spirits New Zealand, and a reminder of what we can achieve when we work together for our industry.

This year, we've seen the awards grow once again, with three new categories introduced — including a Cocktail Bartender of the Year award, shining a light on the hospitality industry that is such an important part of our ecosystem and is facing its own tough times right now. It's one way we can acknowledge the challenges our wider industry faces, while still creating moments of celebration.

Amidst a tough trading environment, rising costs, and regulatory pressures, the awards remain a beacon of excellence and recognition. They are a showcase for the ingenuity and passion of local producers, and an opportunity to benchmark ourselves against the very best from around the world.

Thank you to everyone who entered, judged, sponsored, supported, and gave their time. These awards would not happen without you — and we're proud to stand alongside you in championing spirits in New Zealand.

Meet the Team Behind the 2025 NZ Spirits Awards Judging

It takes a dedicated team to bring the NZ Spirits Awards judging to life each year. From logistics and coordination to judging room operations, this year's event was made possible by the organising committee, the Avenues Event Management team, and our stewarding crew working behind the scenes.

Organising Committee

Ben Leggett, Ben Newman and David Hawk

Avenues Event Management & Stewarding Team

Kayleigh Williams (Event Manager), Henry Soper, Charlotte Carr, Aimee Fraser, James Austin, Maria Salvador, Lila Maffitt and Nadia El Kastawi

Message From the Head Judges

As the New Zealand Spirits Awards continue to grow in both scale and stature, this year's Awards saw another impressive field of entries. Despite ongoing challenges across the global drinks industry — and a tough climate for producers, it's inspiring to see the response being remarkable creativity, discipline, and innovation.

We were particularly impressed by the continued momentum in emerging categories such as agave spirits, and liqueurs/other, alongside consistently strong representation across whisky, gin, and rum. It's encouraging to see producers taking bold risks while maintaining a commitment to quality.

Our judging process is designed to be rigorous, fair, and respectful of the craft behind every bottle. Each product is evaluated blind, and we place particular emphasis on offering meaningful feedback for domestic producers — with the goal of nurturing excellence and supporting ongoing development.

It's a privilege to evaluate products made with such care and passion. After days of thoughtful tasting and discussion, we're proud to present results that reflect the very best of the industry.

Congratulations to all of this year's winners — we look forward to celebrating with you.

– Sam, Joanne, Yvonne, Nick, Adam, Patrick, Gina

Introducing the Associate Judge Programme

New to the New Zealand Spirits Awards in 2025, the Associate Judge Programme was developed to support the next generation of spirits experts by providing hands-on judging experience. This year's Associates attended dedicated judges training before joining experienced panels on the morning of Thursday 17 July. Their fresh perspectives and enthusiasm added great value to the process, while giving them unique insight into professional spirits judging.
