National Infrastructure Plan with application for land transport

New Zealand's National Infrastructure Plan sets out a vision for infrastructure for the next 30 years, and the actions we can take now to get there. This talk will cover Commission's long run view for infrastructure and the role for land transport. It will lay out what the Commission sees as sustainable investment path for the next 30 years and then discuss the Commission's recommendations for improvements to the overall system to enable better outcomes for New Zealanders.
