

Traffic Safety Cameras: Supporting a Safe System

Speed is one of the leading causes of deaths and serious injuries on New Zealand roads. A range of interventions, including enforcement, aim to reinforce the importance of safe driving behaviour and discourage high risk behaviour.

Enforcement activities are delivered through Police officers and traffic safety cameras. Safety camera transition planning is currently underway which will see fixed and mobile safety camera operations moving from New Zealand Police to Waka Kotahi NZ Transport Agency.

This joint presentation by New Zealand Police and Waka Kotahi will focus on the importance of speed management, the role of enforcement, and the planned expansion of safety cameras. It will also cover how Police and Waka Kotahi will approach the future coordination of respective officer and camera enforcement activities to deliver positive road safety outcomes for New Zealand.
