Why the mental health system doesn't have to be broken

This presentation will shine a light to the unique mental health pressures that face women and doctors and the double whammy of a woman doctor. It will also share what are the barriers to care, including the impact of a workforce shortage. Finally, Angela will share the lessons Clearhead has learnt using technology and strategic partnerships to tackle those barriers, in order to provide a more timely, personalised, and accessible mental health service at scale for individuals at need.
