Nick Abrahams
Futurist & Global Head of Digital Transformation
Norton Rose Fulbright

Nick is a LinkedIn Top Voice in Technology. He has been a partner at international law firm Norton Rose Fulbright for over twenty years, spending the last eight years in global technology and innovation leadership roles. Nick co-created the world's first AI-enabled privacy chatbot and won the Financial Times newspaper's Asia Innovator or the Year Award.

He is the Co-founder of LawPath, an online legal solution which has served over 450,000 customers. Nick is on the boards of the Vodafone/TPG Foundation, the Sydney Film Festival and world-leading genetics research organisation, the Garvan Foundation. He is the host of the popular podcast Web3 goes Mainstream and the author of the Amazon best-selling books Big Data, Big Responsibilities and Digital Disruption in Australia. He is an Adjunct Professor at Bond University where he researches and teaches practical uses of Artificial Intelligence in professional services.

Link: Nick Abrahams | Global Co-leader, Digital Transformation Practice | Global law firm | Norton Rose Fulbright