The Clean Air Society of Australia and New Zealand (CASANZ) is pleased to present the 2025 Clean Indoor Air for ALL Conference, taking place in Melbourne from 13–15 October 2025.

Indoor air quality (IAQ) is a fundamental determinant of human health, safety, and well-being, yet the challenges we face today are more complex than ever. From the impacts of climate change and extreme weather events to the lessons learned from the COVID-19 pandemic, the urgency to advance IAQ research, policy, and practice has never been greater.

CASANZ first dedicated a conference to this critical issue in 1994, in collaboration with the International Society of Indoor Air Quality and Climate (ISIAQ). Chaired by Distinguished Professor Lidia Morawska, that inaugural event established a key consensus: comprehensive solutions can only be achieved through integrated approaches at all levels of research, investigation, and practice.

In 2025, we return to this mission—bringing together global experts to examine the state of IAQ, drive evidence-based decision-making, and shape the future of indoor air management.

Who will attend?

The 2025 Clean Indoor Air for ALL Conference is a scientific event that will bring together a diverse range of experts committed to advancing indoor air quality (IAQ), including:

- Environmental scientists and researchers specialising in IAQ, health sciences, chemistry, and biology.
- Public health and occupational health professionals shaping policies to protect indoor environments.
- Architects, urban planners, and building managers designing and maintaining healthier indoor spaces.
- Industry leaders and policymakers driving regulatory advancements and best practices.
- Engineers and technical specialists in HVAC, mechanical systems, and building performance.
- Building and facility managers ensuring healthy indoor spaces across diverse sectors.

With a strong focus on bridging public and occupational health, the conference fosters interdisciplinary collaboration to address the evolving IAQ landscape and shape the future of indoor air management.

Sponsorship

Why Sponsor?

Event sponsors have the unique opportunity to highlight their organisation's role in contributing to the advancement of Clean Indoor Air for ALL to an estimated 120+ industry professionals. Our tailored packages ensure that, as an event sponsor, you will receive multiple benefits and opportunities to build brand awareness and connect with industry leaders and professionals pre-event, during the event itself, and post-event.

Global Reach, Expanded Impact – Exclusive Opportunity

CASANZ is committed to fostering international collaboration while reducing our carbon footprint. For the first time, the 2025 Clean Indoor Air for ALL Conference will feature two Remote Track programs, enabling presenters from Europe and North America to deliver sessions in their local time zones. This innovative addition extends the conference beyond its physical location, allowing delegates to engage live or access recordings at their convenience. For sponsors, this means unparalleled brand exposure to a broader global audience, maximizing visibility and extending reach far beyond the traditional conference format.
