

World-Class Engineering Specialists in Earthing and Lightning Protection

Safeearth are expert engineers specialising in power system earthing and related areas such as lightning protection and interference.

We provide a full range of specialist services, and we also research, design, develop and manufacture a suite of earthing system test instruments and software tools that allow you to design and manage high voltage assets more safely and effectively. These products and services are supported by training, which we offer at every level, from field technicians, to asset strategists, to design engineers.
