

Blair Hussey

International Committee of the Red Cross

Blair Hussey is a native of Nova Scotia, Canada. He has extensive governmental and private sector investigative, analytical, and major case experience in Africa, Europe, Asia, the Caribbean, United Kingdom, and the Americas. He started his career in policing that had spanned over 17 years working as an undercover operator and a Homicide Detective. Blair later led the war crimes investigation team, with the Special Court for Sierra Leone, during the prosecution of Charles Taylor. Blair has held advisory and investigative lead roles with the International Organization of Migration, United Nations Development Programme, United Nations Office of Internal Oversight, the Cayman Islands Anticorruption Unit and the African Development Bank.

Blair holds a Master's degree in Anti-Money Laundering and Counter Terrorism Financing, Bachelor of Arts (Criminology / Community Studies), Post Graduate in Business Administration and a graduate of the Atlantic Police Academy and the Canadian National Police College.

