

Chiawen Kiew

Asian Development Bank

Chiawen Kiew is the Advisor in the Office of Anti-Corruption and Integrity (OAI) at the Asian Development Bank (ADB), where he manages the front office operations of OAI overseeing policy and strategic advice on anti-corruption and integrity policies and controls, developing integrity capacity building to ADB's developing member countries, technology services, and knowledge and communications.

Mr. Kiew formerly led the external investigations team at the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD), where he oversaw and directed external investigations of counterparties, developed processes and controls to mitigate and manage corruption and fraud risk in bank operations, and delivered training programs on integrity and monitoring standards.

He also worked at the OECD, where he evaluated member countries' anticorruption and enforcement frameworks under the OECD Anti-Bribery Convention. He began his career as a lawyer in the private sector representing multinational companies in corruption and fraud investigations and developing anticorruption compliance programs.

