

Alan Pereira

World Food Programme

Alan Pereira has over 15 years of experience in litigation, investigations, and compliance. He has worked with organizations such as the World Bank, Ernst & Young, and multiple UN agencies, including the World Food Programme (WFP), where he currently works as an investigator and advises on AI-driven solutions to strengthen investigative processes. His expertise spans complex, multi-jurisdictional investigations into fraud, corruption, and compliance violations.

A reformed lawyer who turned technologist, Alan was a finalist in the IFM Anti-Corruption Innovation Challenge and has also served as a professional investor, mentoring and vetting technology startups. He chairs the UN-RIS global committee on AI in investigations, coordinating efforts to bring innovation to the UN system. A Certified Fraud Examiner, Alan is dedicated to advancing responsible, effective AI and other technologies in compliance and oversight.
