

Mary Jones

World Trade Organization

Mary Jones is the Head of the Office of Internal Oversight at the World Trade Organization. She has over 20 years' experience in oversight services, including setting up and leading investigation functions, across the public, private, charitable, humanitarian, and multilateral organisation sectors. She has significant experience in handling high profile and complex investigations.

Previous roles include social inclusion and criminology research, evaluation, and audits for the UK Home Office, Ministry of Justice, police forces and charities, Oxfam's Loss Prevention and Fraud and Corruption Teams, Ethics, Compliance and Head of Investigations at Oxford University Press, and Executive Director of the Association of Corporate Investigators. Among her credentials, she is a Certified Fraud Examiner and a Senior Qualified Investigative Interviewer. She is a member of the UNRIS Abusive Conduct and AI working groups.

