Moderator: Mr. Tobias Hoschka, Treasurer, Asian Development Bank

Reserve managers navigate a complex investment environment as persistent geopolitical uncertainty continues to weigh on global markets. Investors are focused on managing duration and credit risk, while selectively seeking opportunities. Amid uncertainties, capital preservation, diversification, and flexibility remain central to fixed income strategies. This session focuses on how to respond to these challenges.

1:30 pm–2:30 pm

Lunch

2:30 pm–3:45 pm

Session 3: Managing Reserves in a Small Country

Format: Presentation with Panel Discussion

Speakers:	Mr. Pema Tshering, Chief Investment Officer, Department of Foreign Exchange and Reserve Management, Royal Monetary Authority of Bhutan
	Ms. Adi Okalani Hola, Manager, Risk Management Unit, Risk Management and Communications Group, Reserve Bank of Fiji
	Mr. Tatafu Moeaki, Governor of the National Reserve Bank of Tonga

Moderator: Mr. Luke Fochtman, Deputy Country Director, Armenia Resident Mission, Asian Development Bank

Foreign exchange reserve management is a key aspect of economic stability for small countries. These economies often face constraints such as limited financial buffers, vulnerability to external shocks, dependence on a narrow range of exports, and exposure to volatile capital flows. Effective management of foreign exchange reserve allows such countries to maintain currency stability and sufficient liquidity, support international trade, and meet debt obligations.

2025 ASIAN REGIONAL FORUM ON INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT OF FOREIGN EXCHANGE RESERVES

8-10 OCTOBER | DILIJAN, ARMENIA

A risk management framework is a requirement for central banks. Risk management requires an understanding of interest rate sensitivity, currency fluctuations, and exposures across asset and liability classes. Policies ensure that risks are identified and reported. To achieve these objectives, a central bank should maintain an independent risk management function, including risk committees that cover financial and operational risks, and monitor adherence to defined rules and limits.

5:30 pm–6:15 pm

Session 5: Artificial Intelligence and Reserves

Format: Conversation

Speakers:	Mr. Gary Kazantsev, Head of Quant Technology, Strategy Office of the CTO, Bloomberg L.P. (virtual)
	Mr. Maximilian Freier, Secretary of the ECB Monetary Policy Committee and AI Coordinator, Directorate General Economics, European Central Bank

Moderator: Ms. Anastasia Nasyrova, Senior Treasury Specialist, Treasury Quantitative Analysis Unit, Asian Development Bank

The session examines how artificial intelligence is reshaping the practice of central banking and the management of reserves. It highlights the opportunities and the challenges and situates artificial intelligence within the context of monetary policy and institutional governance.

7:30 pm–9:30 pm

Dinner hosted by the Central Bank of Armenia

Thursday, 9 October 2025

9:00 am–9:30 am

Registration and Coffee

9:30 am–11:00 am

Session 6: Trends and Challenges in Reserve Management

Format: Presentation with Panel Discussion

Speakers:	Mr. Eric Bouyé, Manager, Product, Knowledge, and Research, World Bank Treasury (virtual)
	Mr. Gary Smith, Head of EMEA Client Portfolio Manager, Fixed Income Columbia Threadneedle Investments
	Ms. Nana Chitishvili, Portfolio Manager, Financial Markets Department, FX Reserves Management Division, National Bank of Georgia
	Ms. Tuvshingerel Tumenbayar, Acting Director, Reserve Management Division, Financial Markets Department, Bank of Mongolia

Moderator: Mr. Joris Schoenmakers, Senior Treasury Specialist, Funding Division, Asian Development Bank

In this session, trends and challenges for reserve managers are assessed. Concerns over protectionist policies, persistent inflation, and interest rate divergence have led institutions to adjust their portfolios. Many expect greater diversification, particularly towards non-core currencies. Gold allocations are set to rise for its diversification benefits and crisis resilience, whereas cryptocurrencies remain largely avoided despite their modestly growing credibility.
