

Sârra-Tilila Bounfour

STB Integrity

Sârra-Tilila Bounfour is the founder and CEO of STB Integrity, a consultancy specializing in integrity and ethics for international organizations. With fifteen years of experience tackling fraud and corruption from policy, investigative, and litigation angles, she has collaborated with entities like the World Bank, the World Food Programme, and Germany's International Climate Initiative.

Sârra-Tilila has led investigations into a wide range of allegations, including financial and workplace misconduct, represented clients in disciplinary and sanctions cases before bodies like the ILOAT and World Bank Sanctions Board, and serves as an international arbitrator in disputes involving multilateral organizations.

She publishes the Integrity Career Institute newsletter, sharing insights into the field of integrity, and delivers training to investigative and legal professionals.

A French-Moroccan national, she is a qualified lawyer in New York and Paris, fluent in English and French, with conversational Italian.

