Henry Kerali

Consultant

Henry Kerali was appointed Professor of Highway Engineering and Management at the University of Birmingham (UK) in 2001, where he led the international research program that developed HDM-4. He subsequently joined the World Bank in 2003 as a Transport Specialist and was appointed Transport Sector Manager covering Europe and Central Asia in 2009. He then became Regional Director for the South Caucasus responsible for the World Bank programs in Armenia, Azerbaijan and Georgia based in Tbilisi (2012-2015) and later he was appointed Country Director for Ghana, Liberia, and Sierra Leone, based in Accra (2015-2019), and for Afghanistan (2019-2021). As Country Director, he provided strategic leadership and oversight of the World Bank program and staff working in these countries. He retired from the World Bank in 2022 after serving for nearly 20 years.
