

Kiyoshi Nakamitsu

Principal Urban Development Specialist
Asian Development Bank

Mr. Kiyoshi Nakamitsu is a Principal Urban Development Specialist at the Asian Development Bank (ADB), serving in the Water and Urban Development Sector Group. He has led the processing of over 10 loans, including several that are large and complex, along with dozens of TA projects focusing on urban water, sanitation, solid waste management, urban transport, social, and public sector reforms across the Asia and Pacific region. Recently, he processed the Yerevan Urban Development Investment Project (YUDIP), a new urban transport project using nature-based solutions in Armenia, working closely with transport, urban, climate, and other teams. Since January 2024, Kiyoshi has been the trust fund manager for the $83 million Urban Resilience Trust Fund (URTF), funded by the UK government, which supports various urban projects, climate change adaptation, and integrated urban development. Previously, Kiyoshi worked with UNICEF in Indonesia, Malaysia, Kenya, Zambia, and at the US headquarters, focusing on water, sanitation, education, child protection, and strategic resource mobilization.
