

Coralie Colson-Schack

World Health Organization

Coralie Colson-Schack is a Lead for Investigation Operations at the World Health Organization. Prior to joining WHO, she was the Head of Investigations at the International Telecommunications Union and a Senior Investigator for the UN High Commissioner for Refugees.

She has been leading investigations in the field of administrative law, human rights and international criminal law for over twenty years and has worked as an investigator and ethics officer for the private sector and the World Bank Group. She has also worked as a legal adviser and attorney for the International Criminal Tribunals for Rwanda and the former Yugoslavia.

Coralie is an attorney (New York State Bar) and a CFE. She holds LL.M from New York University and Paris – Assas University and has graduated from Saint-Cyr Military Academy.

