Rebecca Stapleton

Senior Transport Specialist
Asian Development Bank

Rebecca Stapleton is a Senior Transport Specialist in ADB’s Transport Sector Office, where she drives policy dialogue, project design, and implementation across a multi-country portfolio to advance ADB’s SMART Mobility agenda, supporting developing member countries to scale climate-resilient, low-carbon transport systems. She brings extensive experience in transport economics, road safety, and human-centered design, and integrates gender equality and social inclusion into project design and delivery. Her current work focuses on low-emission transport and safe urban mobility, including bus electrification and public transport improvement programs in Southeast Asia, integrated urban development in the PRC, border efficiency and logistics programs in Mongolia, and key knowledge initiatives on traffic-related air pollution reduction and green roads.
