What to expect at No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden

Domestic and family violence: it begins - and ends - with men

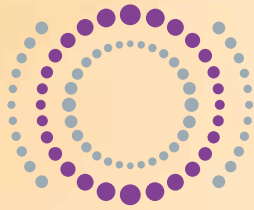

No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden will start a conversation that changes the focus of family and domestic violence in Australia, shifting the burden of responsibility from victim-survivors and placing it firmly on the men who use violence.

No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden will bring together national and international leaders in the field to showcase research, innovative thinking and best practice work to help reduce – and end – men’s family violence.

The conference will open challenging conversations about how to work with men who use family violence, as well as best practice approaches to engage them in the process to change their behaviour.

We hope to energise, motivate and upskill the sector to engage more men in this process – including those from First Nations, CALD, LGBTQI+, those with mental health or disability and those in regional and rural communities. We will seek to spotlight our First Nations work in each stream.

It will also explore how we integrate to transform evidence to action and how we innovate to break the cycle – with a focus on working with young men and boys and with children as victims in their own right.

#ShiftTheBurden

From the Chairperson

No to Violence's work to innovate, engage and integrate responses to men using DFV:

Dear Sponsors/attendees,

No to Violence is proud to be hosting its 2022 Conference in the City of Adelaide, on Kurna Country. Our work encompasses three important and interconnected functions. We provide services everyday across Australia to men using violence, their families and friends.

Our services encompass counselling, advice, referral and housing services. Between July 2020 and June 2021, the Men's Referral Services delivered a family violence counselling and referral service over 14,000 times. We also provide specialist skills based training for anyone working with men to support them to shift from the choice to use violence, to enable them to make a different choice.

We offer support to frontline workers, employers who want to encourage best practice in to the workplace and advanced practitioners across health and human services.

No to Violence delivered training to 1707 professionals from 318 agencies across Australia over the past 12 months. We are Australia's peak body for men's DFV sector with 186 members across all the countries and nations of these vast lands, we advocate and advise all governments on the right findings, policy, standards and workforce settings to optimise our impact.

Our vision is an end to male violence in Australia and we know we can't do this alone.

Come and join us at this event and put your shoulder to the wheel. Help us #ShiftTheBurden away from women having to try to keep themselves safe. Towards men leaning in and stepping up and taking responsibility for the change.

Stefan Grun

Chair, No to Violence

About No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden

Who will attend No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden?

Representatives of governments, peak bodies, practitioners, policy and policing, researchers, the judiciary and victim-survivors will explore how to shift the burden through prevention, early intervention and behaviour change.

The conference will host close to 400 delegates.

The conference will be an emotionally and culturally safe space. The safety and wellbeing of participants is a priority.

Who are the keynote speakers?

The following informative and thought-provoking speakers are confirmed to present at No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden:

- Prof Dr Marcia Lanton AO FASSA FTSE, University of Melbourne
- Todd Fernando, Victorian Commissioner for LGBTIQ+ Communities
- Prof Donna Chung, Curtin University

How will the conference run?

Set over four days, the flexible and hybrid program is structured around three key streams including:

- Transforming Evidence into Action
- One Size Does Not Fit All
- Breaking the Cycle

We will seek to spotlight our First Nations work in each stream.

About No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden

Conference program overview*

|--|--|----------------------------|
| Day 1: Monday 1 August 2022 | Pre-conference workshops Official welcome reception | Adelaide Convention Centre |
| Day 2: Tuesday 2 August 2022 | Conference Program Exhibition Conference Dinner | Adelaide Convention Centre |
| Day 3: Wednesday 3 August 2022 | Conference Program Exhibition | Adelaide Convention Centre |
| Day 4: Thursday 4 August 2022 | Post-conference workshops Exhibition | Adelaide Convention Centre |

Conference program structure subject to change*

Delegates will hear from researchers, practitioners and sector leaders who bring innovative thinking and best practice to address the scourge of domestic and family violence in this country – and abroad.

Training workshops will bookend the conference and provide delegates the invaluable opportunity to learn directly from sector-leading practitioners and researchers.

The conference will also host Spotlight Interviews with men's family violence specialists and researchers. These interviews seek to further the challenging conversations about men using family violence and how we can work with this client cohort to engage in the change process. The specialists work in mental health services, alcohol and other drug services, allied health services and prevention initiatives.

Delegates will have the chance to attend the conference in person or virtually. All delegates will have access to the same conference information via the conference app on their mobile devices for in person delegates or via the virtual conference platform for virtual participants.

Where is the conference?

Running from 1-4 August 2022, the conference will be hosted at the Adelaide Convention Centre.

The Adelaide Convention Centre is one of the world's most modern, flexible and technologically advanced venues. Comprising three distinct yet seamlessly integrated buildings, the Centre spans 20,000sqm of multi-purpose space.

The ACC is positioned at the heart of Adelaide's Riverbank Precinct, just 15 minutes' drive from the Adelaide International Airport. In the midst of a multi-billion-dollar rejuvenation, the Riverbank Precinct is where the city's cultural, sporting, education, medical, conference and entertainment zones merge, helping make Adelaide 'Australia's Convention City'.

Why should you sponsor or exhibit at No to Violence Conference 2022: Shifting the Burden?
