

Dr Ali Alashwal

Dr. Ali Alashwal is currently the Program Lead and Senior Lecturer in Project Management at Western Sydney University. He also leads the Sustainability Group at the Centre for Smart and Modern Construction (c4SMC). Dr. Alashwal has over 15 years of combined experience in academia and industry. He holds a PhD in Construction and Building Economics, an MSc in Construction Management, and a BSc in Architecture and Engineering. He is a Fellow of the UK Higher Education Academy (FHEA) with a distinguished record in academic leadership and teaching excellence, including leading the development of multiple subjects and micro-credential courses in construction and project management. His research portfolio includes over 80 publications covering digital construction, sustainable construction, and project performance.