

AFEEYEA AKHAND

Emerging Associate, NSC

Afeeyya Akhand has most recently been a researcher at the Australian Strategic Policy Institute focusing on South Korean foreign policy, Indo-Pacific security and social cohesion.

Afeeyya's insights have been featured in print and on radio through ABC and SBS News, and she has spoken at Australian and international conferences. She has also worked in the Department of Defence and a consultancy for government and defence industry clients. Afeeyya is committed to the promotion of cultural diversity and intersectionality in foreign policy and national security. She is the Secretary of Women in International Security – Australia and is a committee member of Careers in Colour, a not-for-profit dedicated to advancing the inclusion of people of colour in Australian workplaces.