

SALLY BULKELEY

Deputy Head, ANU National Security
College

Sally joined the ANU National Security College in November 2024, on secondment from the Department of Defence, where she was responsible for delivering Defence workforce and national security policy advice to Government, including the 2024 Defence Workforce Plan.

Sally has held various national security roles in Defence, PM&C, and ministerial offices, including as Deputy Chief of Staff to the Hon Richard Marles MP. Since 2020, Sally has held membership to senior national security committees, representing Defence to deliver advice on counter terrorism, foreign investment, national resilience, cyber policy, critical technologies, and counter-proliferation and arms control.

Sally has a passion for raising national security awareness across the Australian community and mentoring emerging national security practitioners.