

MAYOR TANYA TAYLOR

Mayor of Willoughby City Council

Tanya Taylor was elected Mayor of Willoughby City Council in 2021, becoming the third female Mayor in the Council's 157-year history. She currently serves as President of the Northern Sydney Regional Organisation of Councils (NSROC), where she advocates for regional collaboration and sustainable growth across the North Shore.

A passionate community advocate, Tanya leads one of NSW's most diverse councils and is committed to inclusive decision-making, environmental sustainability, and empowering local communities. She champions initiatives to protect Willoughby's tree canopy, support small business, and celebrate multiculturalism through the arts.

With a background in event and project management and a degree in Community Development, Tanya has long been active in volunteer and advocacy roles, particularly across youth, disability, and education sectors.

Tanya is a strong advocate for gender equity and is proud to support and mentor emerging women leaders. She believes diverse voices make stronger decisions — and better communities.
