When used responsibly, LLMs can drastically boost productivity. But what truly sets Generative AI apart is how it can identify overlooked gaps in both teaching and research. During this session, you'll get hands-on practice using Generative AI in teaching and research. We'll explore how it can turn complex academic papers into fun learning tools, how interactive games can help students learn through role-playing scenarios, foster design thinking exercises, generate quick case studies for in-class discussions and how AI can even support work-integrated learning. We'll also discuss how GenAI can enrich our research practices by understanding its ethical application to various phases of project development and data analysis. No previous experience with LLMs is needed, but please ensure you have access to ChatGPT.	Design active and collaborative learning across a subject/unit, and at the topic level (i.e. learning week) in the areas of pre-class, in-class, and post class Next steps and close
