This program is designed to equip healthcare professionals with the knowledge to recognize and manage emergent cardiac conditions in ambulatory care settings. Topics include identifying and responding to chest pain, hypertensive emergencies, dissecting aneurysms, and cardiac dysrhythmias. Participants will review evidence-based treatment protocols and gain practical guidance on determining when to activate emergency services, transfer to the ER, or manage conditions in outpatient care. Enhance your ability to make timely, informed decisions to improve patient outcomes in high-stakes situations.
