

23RD

EAPR TRIENNIAL CONFERENCE

EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND
6 - 10 JUNE 2027

INTRODUCTION

*It is a pleasure to host the 23rd EAPR Triennial
Conference in Edinburgh,
Scotland 6th-10th June 2027*

The European Association of Potato Research (EAPR) conference has a long history dating back to 1960, where the first Triennial Conference was held in Brunswick-Volkenrode, Germany. Since then, both the science and production of potatoes has changed enormously and we look forward to welcoming scientists and practitioners to exchange knowledge, share ideas and present new research findings.

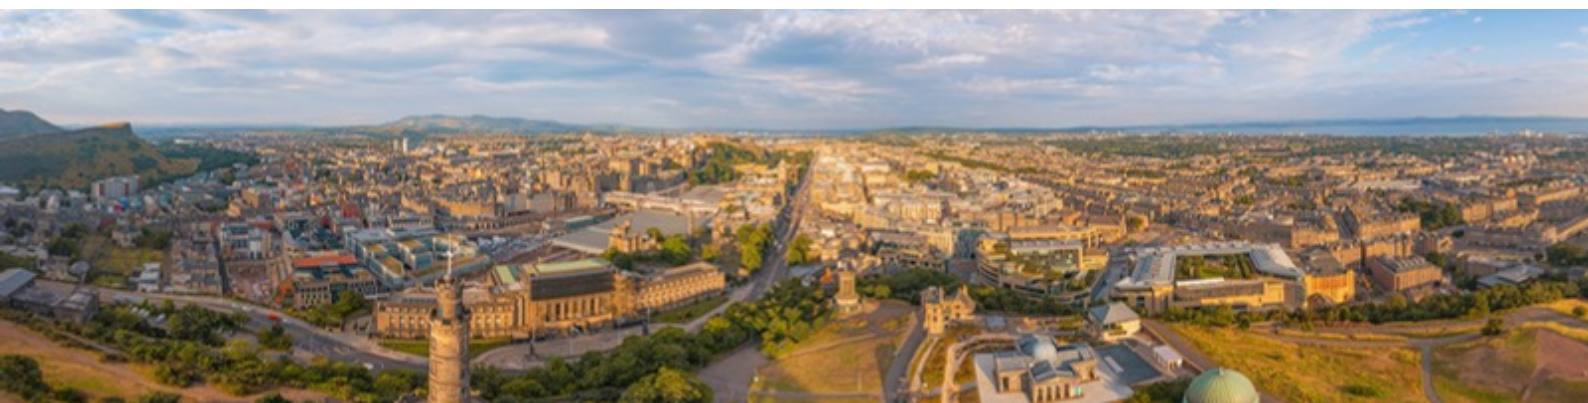

The EAPR aims to promote the exchange of scientific and technical information relating to all facets of potato including breeding, production, protection, storage and utilisation between countries both in and outside Europe.

We are expecting over 300 delegates at the conference from the UK, Europe and internationally, with over 4 days of keynote presentations, parallel sessions and excursions. The conference will be held in the University of Edinburgh's historic McEwan Hall in the centre of one of Europe's most beautiful cities.

Thank you for your support of the 23rd EAPR Triennial Conference and we look forward to seeing you there!

Prof Ian Toth

EAPR President and Conference Chairperson
