

Dr Kish Mankad

London, UK

Dr Kish Mankad is a Paediatric Neuroradiologist based at London's Great Ormond Street Childrens Hospital. He has a significant interest in outreach education and training, as has established several platforms for knowledge sharing internationally, essentially to make provisions for high class but economical education available to all, with the aim of standardising neuroradiological practices for all children wherever they may be.

He has a significant academic interest in all aspects of paediatric neuroimaging, and has published just under 300 peer reviewed papers, 4 textbooks and several book chapters. He has been awarded an honorary associate professorship at University College London.

Outside of medicine and education, Dr Mankad is an ardent fan of travel and writing.
