

Prof Tanya Doherty

Cape Town, South Africa

Tanya is a chief specialist scientist in the Health Systems Research Unit, SAMRC.

Her research focus is health system requirements for the optimal delivery of priority child health programmes at community and primary care.

She has conducted several cluster-randomised trials and programme evaluations of community and primary services in South Africa and across the continent and has published over 100 peer reviewed articles.

She is also an honorary professor in the Department of Paediatrics and Child Health, UCT where she teaches and assists with student supervision.