

Prof. Gill Harrison

United Kingdom

Professor Harrison is a radiographer and sonographer with over 30 years' experience in clinical practice and education. She was Associate Professor, Ultrasound Programme Director and Lead for Teaching Excellence at City, University of London, before becoming Professional Officer for Ultrasound at the SCoR.

Professor Harrison is currently a guest lecturer at several universities in the UK and overseas. She was involved in the development of national consensus guidelines for the delivery of unexpected news in obstetric ultrasound and has recently published an ultrasound textbook.

In addition, she is also involved in accreditation of ultrasound programmes, e-learning resource development, strategic developments, coaching and leadership.