

Dr Greg Simpson

South Africa

Dr Greg Simpson followed his interest in animals and adventure to study veterinary science (BVSc), public health (MPH), wildlife management (MPhil) and infectious diseases (PhD). He gained has experience as a wildlife and mixed animal veterinarian, public health researcher, veterinary school lecturer and a project manager in the fields of education, conservation and animal health. He helped build a successful group of veterinary clinics and other initiatives from conception. His desire is to have a positive influence on conservation, animal and public health through his veterinary and management skills, while empowering others. He is currently the director of the Wildlife Forensic Academy with a mission to improve forensic knowledge and skills to assist with wildlife conservation.