

Dr Graham Jamieson Senior Lecturer in Cognitive, Affective and Social Neuroscience, University of New England With over 40 years of research into hypnosis, dissociation, and suggestion, Dr Jamieson integrates neuroscience methods (EEG, ECG, neural modelling) with lived experience to understand how hypnotic phenomena arise. His work bridges long-standing divides between top-down and bottom-up explanations, using predictive coding to show how experience and behaviour emerge from dynamic brain–body interactions.