

BORDER CONTROL & SCHENGEN EES

WHAT NEXT?

Olivier HUBERT

European Programs Director – Travel & Transport

06/05/2025

BUILDING SMARTER BORDERS

A challenging border management program

- Complex requirements to be implemented in complex national context and environments
- Timeline and breadth makes EES being a challenge for the industry

Lessons learnt

- Operations at borders and travelers experience confirmed to be highly impacted
- All border types has to deal with its own constraints, including airports
- Self-service and automation fairly widely adopted but...

Way forward

- Travelers will need to be guided through the EES journey
- Complementary facilitation measures would ease and reduce the processing at borders
- The Schengen border control ecosystem will continue to evolve to strengthen security and fight against new threats