Japanese food / Fukuoka's specialty

Seafood, motsunabe, mizutaki, mentaiko, gameni and udon are some of the "Fukuoka Gourmet" specialities that you will want to eat again once you try them. If you come all the way to Fukuoka, please enjoy as much as you can eat.

Without a doubt, Fukuoka's specialty is ... "Spicy mentaiko".

Walleye pollack eggs soaked in a spicy sauce, it is essential not only for eating with rice, but also for drinking. It was first sold in Japan in January 10, 1949. Toshio Kawahara is the founder of "FUKUYA". This taste has been handed down to this day.

©Fukuoka City

Seafood

You should definitely try the superb dishes prepared in the best condition with fresh fish caught on the day at Hakata Port. Kyushu's delicious seafood are all gathered in this Fukuoka kitchen. Enjoy with a few drinks.

Fukuoka sashimi's delicious taste comes from its thickness.

The taste of fresh seafood is greatly affected by the cooking. The sashimi in Fukuoka is especially delicious, the secret is "thickness of the sashimi" which is served so that you can feel the original texture of the ingredients at a reasonable price. Every restaurant has its own taste, so why don't you order an assorted sashimi for starters?

©Fukuoka City

The chef trained at a sushi restaurant and brings out the original flavor of the ingredients with various cooking methods such as sashimi, grilling, simmering, and steaming.
