

Dr Tobisa Fodo

Dr Tobisa Fodo is the head of the critical care unit at Thelle Mogoerane regional hospital in Gauteng. Having been drawn into Critical Care following personal loss, Dr Fodo holds pride in being the first intensivist to qualify in the Eastern Cape.

She runs a multi-disciplinary Critical Care Unit, having had to build and sustain a unit that has never had a full-time specialist.

She runs the largest regional hospital Critical Care unit in Ekurhuleni.

Outside of work, Dr Fodo finds reading a good book and spending time with her family, especially her two boys, Uminathi and Likhakha. She also enjoys a challenging hike on a weekend.
